SUNDAY REFLECTION

There is nothing we can say in our praises that God does not already know.
But praising God isn't about conveying information; it's about deepening our relationship.

Marriage is an imperfect metaphor for the relationship between God & people, but in this case, it's helpful. When I tell my husband I love him, I'm not telling him anything new. But what kind of marriage would we have if we just said our vows at the altar and then never spoke of them again, assuming day after day our hearts remain unchanged?
Reassuring one another of our affections helps calibrate our minds and action so we can maintain those vows against all the distractions of the world.

The same is true in our relationship with God. Keeping the promises we made at baptism is hard work. Being consistent in praise and gratitude for God's generosity to us helps us keep those promises and grow in relationship with our loving Creator.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT...

"We should ask ourselves: Have I really experienced the joy of loving?"
- Mother Teresa
