REFLECTION

Luke 18:16b Let the children come to me, and do not stop them, for it is to such as these that the kingdom of God belongs.

As parents of a young children, we have to remind ourselves of this verse, especially, ironically, when we are in church. In church, my foster son likes to make loud noises when the service is silent, bang his cars on the pews and run and laugh. Well, basically, he acts the same at church as he does at home. We have to remind ourselves that our children's noises and imaginary play are beautiful things, not annoyances. Children come to church without inhibition, unafraid to be completely themselves. Maybe we all need to take a cue from them.
