REFLECTION

Exodus 4:10. But Moses said to the Lord, "O my Lord, I have never been eloquent, neither in the past nor even now that you have spoken to your servant; but I am slow of speech and slow of tongue."

About this time in the calendar, many preachers are fretting about what they will say for Easter. There is a certain pressure about the Easter sermon. The pews are fuller with parishioners having dragged in family and neighbours. Folks we haven't seen in years are in church. What can we say that will make a difference?

In moments like this, it is helpful to remember that Moses told God, "I have never been eloquent." And, somehow, Moses' words still helped set his people free.

No measure of great preaching is likely to make the pews on the first Sunday after Easter as full as on Easter Sunday. If you're a preacher, trust that God will give you the words you need. Welcome the children. Care for the stranger. Bring hope. If you're not a preacher, be kind to our preacher this week.
