REFLECTION
One of my friend's favourite books of the Bible is the Acts of the Apostles.
He's fascinated with the action, the movement of Paul and the disciples into the world, doing the work they've been uniquely selected to do. I understand what he means. This short, simple sentence for Acts marked the beginning of Paul's first missionary journey and engages me in the same way.
“But the word of God continued to advance and gain adherents.” Wait. This passage isn't just about long-ago disciples heading out into the world. The word of God advances when someone extends an invitation to worship or during the eucharistic minister's visit to a busy hospital unit.
God's work is shared when the church building is offered for a community event, the choir sings at a retirement facility, or the priest participates in a charity run. Ministry in the world is made up of so many little opportunities that might seem to pale in the face of being ‘sent out.’ And yet, each day offers innumerable chances to walk alongside those near and far, being God's word in the world, so that more may come to know God's love.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT Where charity is not found,
God cannot dwell.
